

Allison Transmission Honored with ASE Training Excellence Award for Second Consecutive Year

December 7, 2021

Allison's Train-the-Trainer program was recognized for its innovative, immersive technician training

INDIANAPOLIS--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Dec. 7, 2021-- Allison Transmission is pleased to announce that it has been honored with a prestigious award for its first-rate training program. ASE Training Managers Council, a global nonprofit that is objectively dedicated to the advancement of training and professional development in the transportation service industry, awarded Allison with a 2021 National Excellence in Training Award.

Allison has been recognized for its Train-the-Trainer program, which ensures that our Authorized Distributor trainers can deliver a high-quality training experience via an innovative, immersive learning environment. The benefits of Allison's Train-the-Trainer program are realized throughout the Allison service network, producing Allison Accredited trainers capable of managing the entire training process, from planning through delivery and administrative follow-up.

"With a global service network of more than 1,400 Allison Authorized Dealers and Distributors, Allison understands that training is key to properly maintaining such a robust and geographically expansive group of highly-skilled technicians," said Todd Dawn, Manager of Global Product Training and Technical Publications at Allison Transmission. "The Train-the-Trainer program allows Allison to efficiently share the subject matter expertise to truly leverage our incredible service network."

The annual Excellence in Training Awards recognize outstanding, innovative training programs designed for the automotive and truck industries. The awards are open to entities that provide training in the industry and shine a spotlight on how important training and continued professional development is to the success of the industry.
